

THE SILK ROAD

The silk road was actually comprised of more than one route. In order to complete this often arduous journey, traders carried their goods and supplies by caravan. Along the way there were rest stops or inns known as 'caravanserais'. Silk, jade and porcelain were traded along this route.

English

Français

Credits

Feedback

